

"Greg,
I was wondering what it looked like inside your head...
And then I received this cool package in my office with a gold telescope with a perfect view of "inside Greg's head".
Wow...I certainly will stay tuned in...Your perspective is valuable."

Accounting and High Technology: New Blog - www.FromGregHead.com - Algor Altsch
Senior Advisor, Executive with Global IT, Finance, Healthcare, and Insurance Groups

2008-2009 - January 15, 2009 - New, middle market business executives are increasingly using IT solutions, financial solutions and business models from one of the accounting and IT thought leaders - the firm. Greg Hines, director of the Consulting Solutions Group at PricewaterhouseCoopers of Texas, LLC, PKF Texas, has just launched his web log blog, From Greg's Head www.FromGregHead.com, which offers readers an inside look at the accounting and technology world.

The blog brings new technologies, financial solutions, cost cutting and industry ideas for business executives on the go. In one of the most technical business environments in the world, Greg Hines combines his extensive firm industry's unique accounting and technology solutions. The blog will allow Hines to share his views with a larger audience and dialogue with those who want to learn more from the industry system.

"We hope it that the community will use this resource as an avenue for collaborative and knowledge sharing among the accounting and technology sectors," Greg stated. "The blog provides a valuable platform for the reader to share their views and perspectives."

The blog offers several features, including articles about: Software, Technology, Work in Gear, In the Community, Client Spotlights and Observations. Readers are also invited to reach Hines directly through the contact information provided on the website.
