Was it when you got an answer faster than
a speeding bullet?

Who likes to wait? Not you. Especially when you've got a great opportunity or a potential problem and you need your accountant's advice, like now. Or someone to bounce an idea off. Or someone you know would love to hear about the new client you just landed or the big award you received. When you call your accountant, you want to talk to someone who knows your business and knows what's important to you. And cares enough to get back to you today.

If we're not talking about your accountant, maybe you should be talking to us. Learn more about what life could be like with an accountant you love by calling us at 1-866-799-9580 or visiting www.rehmann.com.

Was it when you
started finishing each other's sentences?

The most valuable business solutions are developed in close collaboration with smart people who know your business, know your industry, understand your goals and care as much about getting it right as you do. That doesn't mean you won't disagree or challenge each other - or laugh at each other once in a while. It just means you have the kind of partnership that makes work a lot more fun - even the meetings.

Was it when you
got a solution to a problem you didn't know you had?

You want more than just answers to your questions. You want someone who will think about your business in the shower. And once they dry off, you want them to call you with great new ideas about how you can save money on taxes. Or increase manufacturing productivity. Or develop a leadership training program. Or improve customer satisfaction.

Wouldn't you love to work with an accountant that would not only watch your back, but also be proactive about ideas to put your company in the forefront? We know where you can find one.
